Sport Against Racism Ireland Northern Ireland, Republic of Ireland

Supporting integration and tackling discrimination

Sport Against Racism Ireland (SARI) was founded in 1997 as a direct response to the growing number of racist attacks that had resulted from the dramatic increase in the number of foreign nationals living in Ireland.

SARI's mission is to support cultural integration and social inclusion in Ireland by using sport, and particularly football, as a medium to combat racism, sectarianism, homophobia and other forms of discrimination. SARI organises regular football programmes, annual sporting events, school sports and educational programmes and cultural activities to tackle discrimination. The SARI delegation at the Football for Hope Festival is made up of young people from both Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.
