Uruguay

Fighting for children's rights and the inclusion of the Afro-Uruguayan population

Two organisations make up the team from Uruguay, Asociación Civil Gurises Unidos (GGUU) and Mundo Afro (MA). Since late 2007, they have jointly developed the National Street Football League in Uruguay. Matches in the league are played according to the 'Fútbol Callejero' (street football) methodology, with rules very similar to those at the Football for Hope Festival 2010 tournament.

Since its formation in 1989, GGUU has evolved into one of South America's most renowned organisations for the protection of children's rights, tackling issues such as child labour, street children and gender equality. By using football they are able to work with target groups that are especially hard to reach. Mundo Afro aims to foster the acceptance and integration of Afro-Uruguayan culture. The organisation fights against violence and discrimination, works to raise self-esteem in the Afro-Uruguayan population and facilitates exchange between African cultures and organisations worldwide.
